PRESENTATION

Common Ground Health - Age Friendly Livable Community - Guest speaker Melissa Wendland mentioned this group has been servicing our community for over 50 years. They are the only health planning agency that has survived over the years in the county. They come together as a joint initiative to support older adults and to ensure they are getting the services they need to feel safe, and needs are met no matter the age. Everyone should have accessibility to buy healthy foods, enjoy public places, and to be able to work or volunteer if they choose. Age Friendly Livable Communities look at those that are 50 and older and are getting close to retirement. The older population want to stay in their communities where they feel safe, comfortable, where they have worked, raised families, voted, and become part of a volunteer program within their community. Common Ground Health works on analysis to supply data to address the health and age of our population and support their well being. We are an aging county and the second oldest in the state. We are planning the future for older adults to learn more about the age-friendly characteristics of each village, town, and city. These communities are in public spaces that have housing, transportation, health services, communication, along with information on engagement and work. New York State is the first state to achieve age friendly designations. By July 7, their priority is to focus on groups of 50 and older and have a comprehensive plan to update and recognize the older aging in the community. The Monroe County Aging Alliance is conducting a Livable Community questionnaire that is available for Monroe County residents that are 50 years of age and older. Information can be found on our counter, lobby and by calling (585) 240-2890 or e-mailing at melissa.wendland@mcagingalliance.org. Melissa looks forward to engaging residents and local government in the near future.
